Hope in the air

At the beginning of 2019 there was hope in the air for South Africa that was fuelled by some epic wins through the year.

The best and biggest for many was the Springbok win of the Rugby World Cup! The country pulled together as one. We cheered our boys on as we won 32 – 12, led by our first black captain, Siya Kolisi. You could feel the unity in our country.

The Ndlovu Youth Choir wowed judges on America's Got Talent and became world famous, proceeding to the final stages of the competition. The pride and love that we had for this young choir was palpable.

Trevor Noah, our golden boy, filled up Madison Square Gardens, The Daily Show was nominated for an Emmy, and he is in the top ten of the world's best paid comedians. We love it when someone with such humble beginnings in SA does so well. It's a win for all of us.

There was more joy – Proteas Netball team shone in Netball World Cup and fought back against the Australians in the semi-finals, defeated with a narrow 55–53. An exceptional maths and science teacher from KZN, Khangelani Sibiyi (known as KWV), was named Best Global Teacher of the year. Teddy Nzama was named the 2019 Starbucks Europe, Middle East and Africa barista champion. Our magnificent Miss South Africa, Zonibini Tunzi, won Miss Universe.

And one of my favourite feel good stories of 2019 was when petrol attendant, Nkosikho Mbele, paid for Monet van Deventer's petrol when she forgot her petrol card. She went onto social media in praise of the generous man and without planning to, raised over R100K to help him.

Wow, what an amazing year for national pride.

There also was the bad and ugly.

We had hope that the election in May that would turn things around. We trusted Cyril to lead the country as he had led in industry; we've been waiting for that breath of fresh air, but it is yet to sweep the land.

The Zondo Commission reconvened in January 2019 to continue its inquiry into allegations of State Capture and accusations and testimonies of wholesale plunder came to light. The abuse of power, bribery and corruption that ran rampant is gaining exposure and there is hope that, though slow in coming, some justice will prevail and the criminals will be brought to book. Time is yet to tell.

The year also brought a resurgence in xenophobic attacks – and some affected African countries struck back, looting and pillaging South African retail brands across the continent.

The slow economy saw thousands of job losses and large corporates closing their doors. Loadshedding added to the end of year crises and Eskom se Push became the most used app in South Africa for weeks.

2020 is here – and more is demanded of us if we want to continue to survive and even thrive in this environment.

Preparation is key

As consumer spend is squeezed, retailer margins become tighter. Careful analysis at every stage of business is crucial to be sure that you get bang for every buck you spend.

Over the past 65 years, suppliers to the retail industry have trusted Supermarket & Retailer to deliver their message to decision makers in retail, delivering impactful, factual and relevant information to this industry.

In our Equipment and Services Buyers' Guide 2020 we showcase the leaders in this industry – the suppliers that have the knowledge, infrastructure and consistent and dedicated service delivery that you have come to rely on.

For instance, are you energy savvy? This is a global trend, but as cheap and reliable electricity is a thing of the past in South Africa, what can retailers do to improve their consumption and where can they save money? What services, equipment and technologies are on offer in the market that can deliver exceptional results?

We encourage you to use the Buyers' Guide, review it with colleagues, make comparisons, check out your options, and do your sums. It's designed to provide access to valuable information and ideas to help you in the growth of your business.

Here are some gathered perspectives on other trends that are affecting our retail sector.

What's in store in 2020?

Although e-commerce keeps growing, brick and mortar is coming back. Yuppie Chef recently opened their first brick and mortar shop after 14 years of trading online. The consumer is becoming savvier, while doing price comparisons online to find the best deal, they still want to touch, smell and see the quality of a product irl (in real life). Your online presence is an imperative for continued sales growth.

With knowledge comes power – data is important. Know who is buying what, and at what times of the month. Make it easy for the consumer to give you data and use this to create loyalty by addressing their needs and creating needs that they never knew they had. This keeps feet in the store, steadily throughout the month.

Convenience and food service

Retail is taking on takeaway as consumers look for healthier options for themselves and their families while leading busy lives. We will discuss using effective and creative store design and equipment to maximise your profits, while delighting and enticing the consumer.

Sustainability and ecology

The world is shifting its views on the environment very swiftly, this is our new reality. Freon gases are going to be discontinued in South Africa within five to 10 years. The shift to CO<sub>2</sub> has happened overseas and, as demand for Freon gas decreases, so the price increases. Being conscious of what causes damage to the environment is a necessity.

Consumers are asking tougher questions of FMCG products – is it sustainable, locally sourced, fair trade and is it healthy? The vegetarian and vegan movements have momentum. Are you keeping up with demand or will this important segment go shopping in another store that can meet their requirements?

Tribute

In closing, I would like to pay tribute to my grandfather, Leon Maister, and my father, Stephen Maister. They dedicated themselves to building Supermarket & Retailer as an institution in the industry. I am very proud of their efforts to ensure it delivered, and continues to deliver, valuable content for our readers and as a platform for suppliers to share their messages, opinions, knowledge, and perspectives.

The loss of my father in August 2019 was a sadness that has rocked me to my core. We had spent a lot of time together over the past 10 years at Supermarket & Retailer, and in family life – and I know I have been blessed to have such an amazing father and mentor. He will be remembered by many as a lighthouse of knowledge in the retail industry.

Thank you for your support, involvement and interest over the past year. We look forward to providing you with knowledge that counts.

Warm regards

Helen Maister

Retail success in 2020 will be defined by value: 7 technology strategies to unlock growth

By Gareth Hawkey
Group CEO redPanda Software

As the year comes to an end, it is clear that the role and function of brick and mortar stores has fundamentally changed. Increasingly, physical stores have to become a seamless extension of an overall customer experience that blends the best of the online and offline worlds. Indeed, savvy and forward-thinking retailers understand that the lines between online and offline are blurring, and the question is not so much around whether to have a physical or online presence – the fundamental question is how to deliver the most value to your customer.

In South Africa, retailers should take their cue from the global shift and find local solutions that speak to the fundamental shift that is happening. Arguably, many decision-makers within local retail are stuck in ‘traditional’ thinking that is purely focused on cost savings and efficiencies (the low hanging fruit) – with little vision of a fundamental transformation that puts the customer first.

Understanding where value lies

To keep up with the lightning fast pace of change in global retail, most of which is technology-driven, SA's retail decision-makers have to embrace a new mindset that is less risk averse, more experimental and that is entirely centred on providing value to the customer. Looking ahead, we believe that three things will define retail success in the years to come:

- convenience (for example, easy online payment options)
- brand strength (are you a premium brand?)
- customer experience (is your buying experience seamless and easy?).

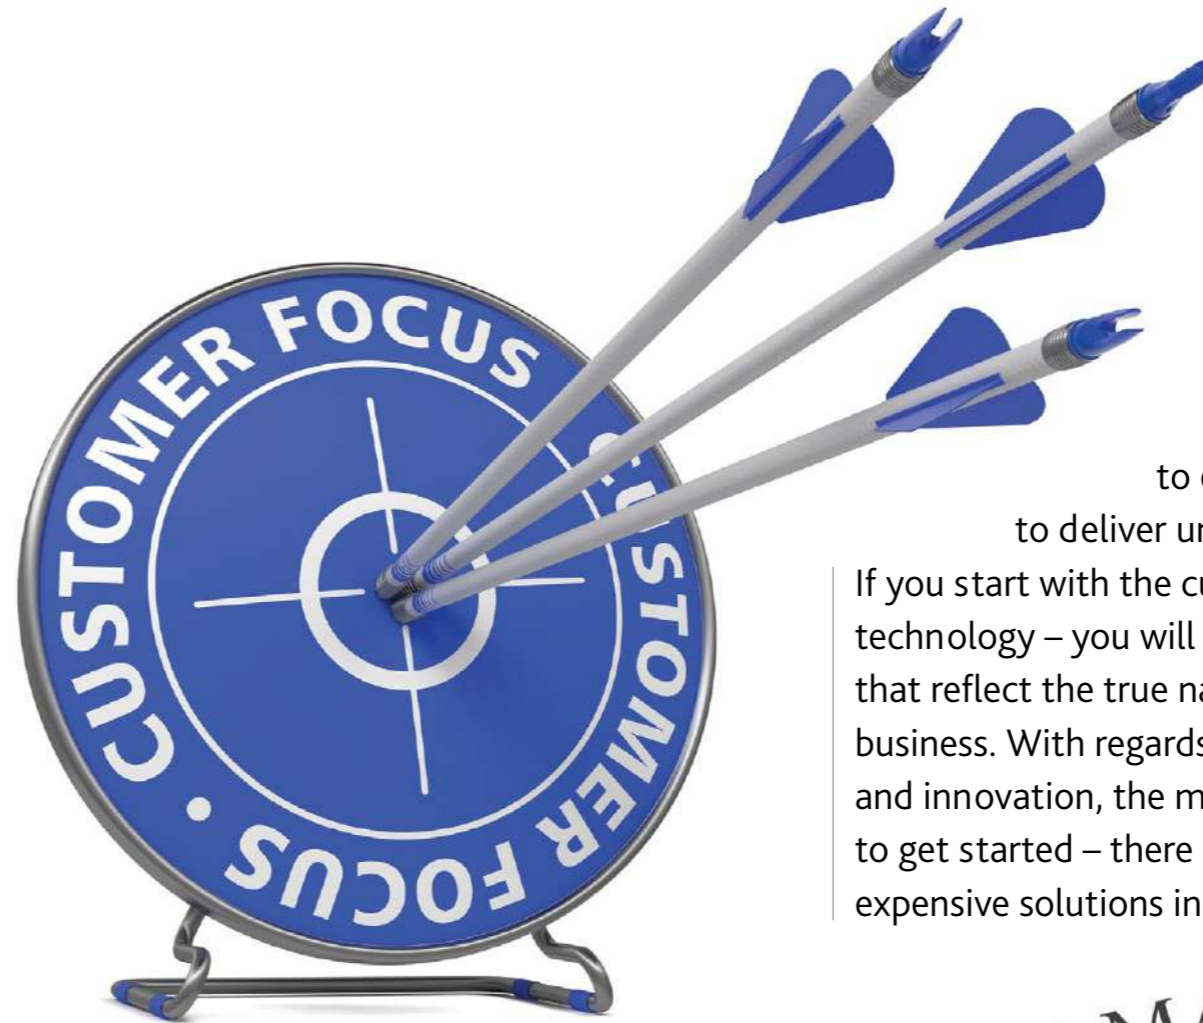

In order to remain relevant in a highly competitive retail landscape, every retailer has to fulfil these three functions. In South Africa, we currently risk losing ground on all three...

So, where to begin?

Ask the right questions

In order to better understand how to deliver value to your customer, you need to be equipped with the right knowledge. This knowledge can be extracted from data – credit card data, buying patterns, location data, stock trends, customer feedback, etc.

Once you explore and analyse the data at hand, you can better understand what is working and what is not. Remember, unless this knowledge can impact in-store operations, it is probably irrelevant.

Everything has to come back to delivering more value to the customer as they move through the purchasing journey. To guide your thinking, ask questions such as:

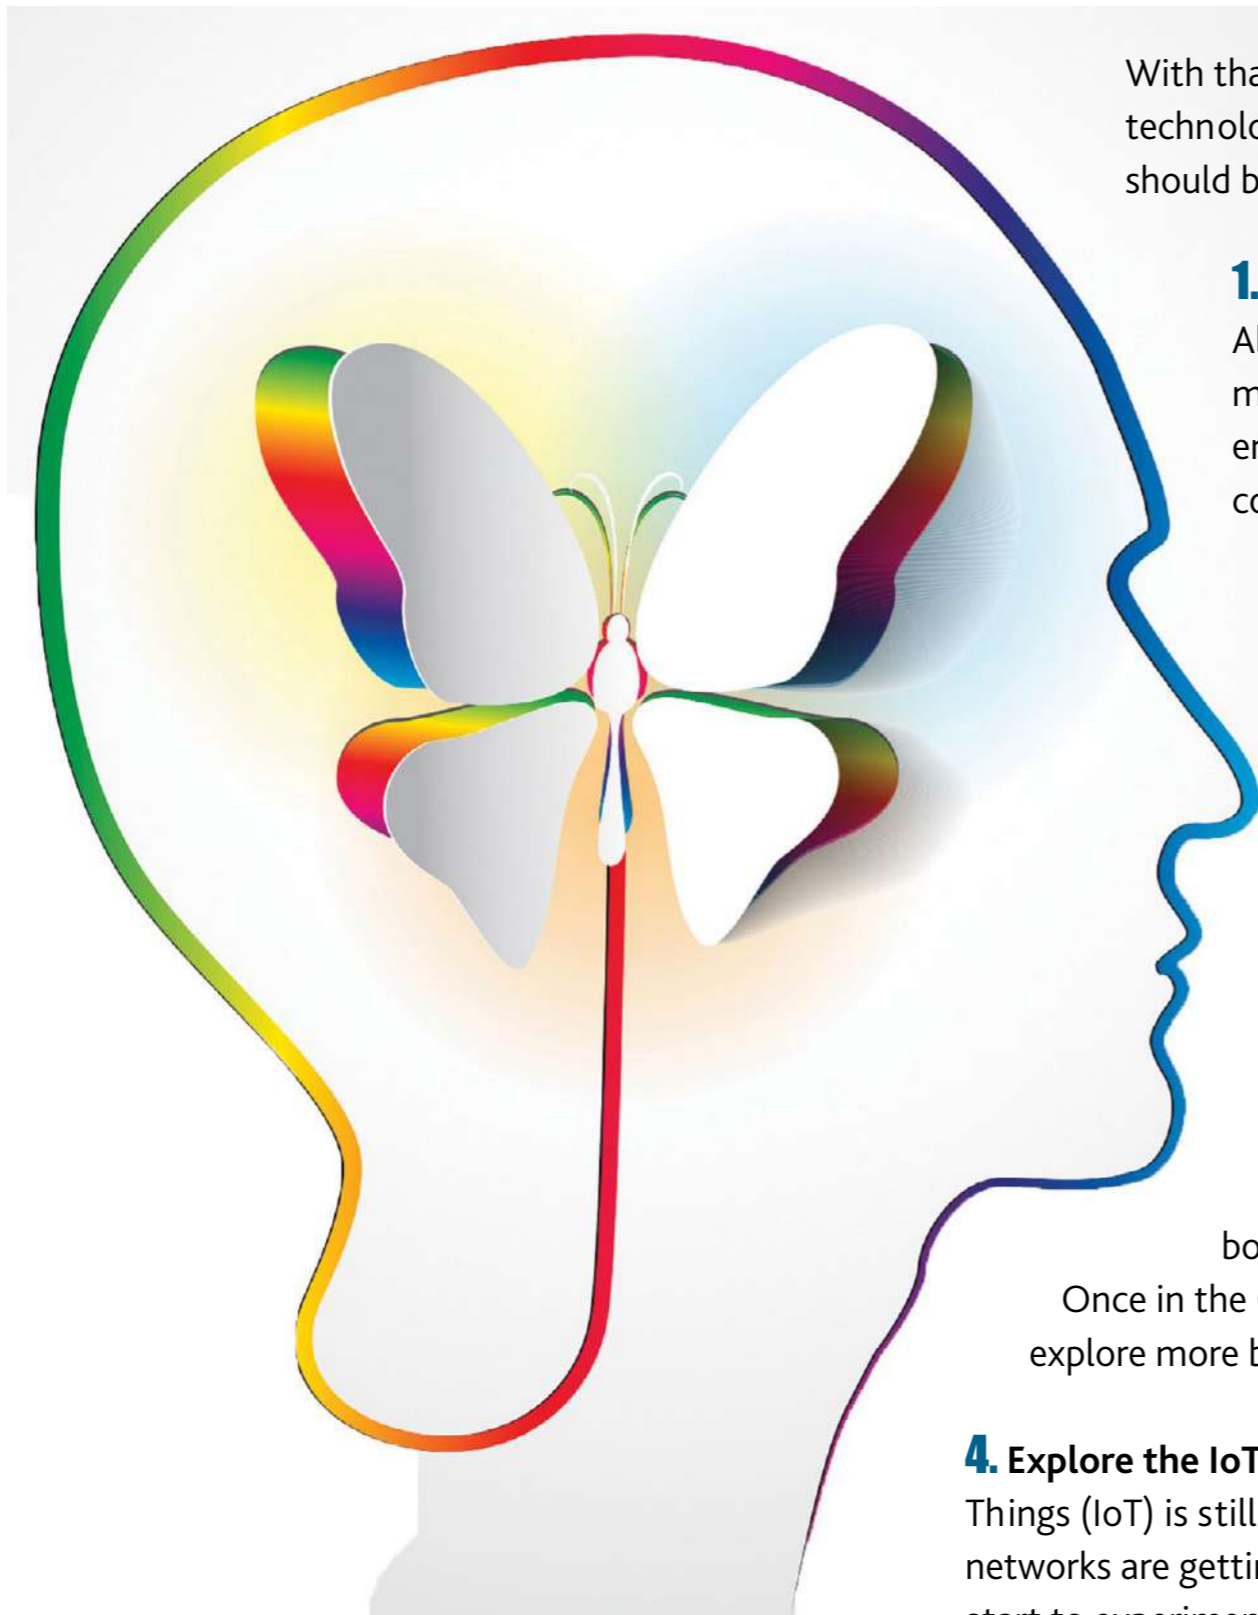

- Who are we?
- Who are our customers?
- What do we do very well?
- What do customers come to us for?

Leveraging technology to drive value

Once you have real insight into these key elements, you can then start exploring various technology solutions to ensure that you will be able to deliver unique value to the customer.

If you start with the customer in mind – not the technology – you will undoubtedly make decisions that reflect the true nature of your brand and business. With regards to technology investment and innovation, the most important thing is just to get started – there is no need to have full and expensive solutions in place right away!

With that in mind, here are our top seven technology strategies that every retailer should be looking at....

1. Enable payment flexibility:

Allow customers to pay via mobile for example, and place the emphasis on security as well as convenience.

2. Create an omnichannel offering:

Today, every retailer has to have an e-commerce presence of some kind that links seamlessly to the in-store environment.

3. Transition into the Cloud:

move your data and certain key services into the Cloud. The major providers such as AWS and Google will ensure both data security and reliability.

Once in the Cloud, you can slowly start to explore more bespoke services.

4. Explore the IoT: Although the Internet of Things (IoT) is still maturing in South Africa, networks are getting stronger and businesses can start to experiment with different use cases.

5. Find collaborative partners: More and more retailers are harnessing collaborative partnerships to draw in foot traffic and leverage key resources, such as a global brand, to boost growth using the 'store within a store' concept.

6. Look at voice-enabled technologies:

Many experts are hailing the beginning of a 'voice' revolution, whereby consumers will increasingly make use of voice-activated devices and services. Savvy retailers should look to become first movers in this space.

7. Find ways to apply AI to your customer database:

AI and machine learning, whilst still in their infancy, can be hugely transformative by creating questions that you would never have thought to ask. Start implementing data analytics and begin to mine customer data for key insights.

While many of these strategies may appear daunting, the key is to get started and to begin to explore where you can unlock value. Success will depend on finding the right partners and specialists, who can guide you along the way. Looking ahead, retail growth and sustainability will be the domain of those who prioritise experimentation ... and are able to think differently about delivering value in-store! SR

South Africans feel the squeeze, but want to spend

South Africa's latest Consumer Confidence Index (CCI) for the third quarter of 2019 showed a five point decrease to 88, presenting a less positive quarter on quarter picture for consumer sentiment in South Africa.

nielsen Nielsen | Medialnk

Nielsen South Africa Connect MD Kerith Botha says; "Consumer confidence has slipped back to the same level as it was a year ago (Q4, 2018) as South Africans continue to face enormous financial pressures due to subdued economic growth, spiralling utility costs and increased job losses. Nevertheless, our survey reveals that there is still some optimism in terms of their propensity to spend."

In terms of the daily realities that they face, 19% of South Africans' monthly budget allocation currently goes towards food and beverages at home, 18% to housing (rent, mortgage and utilities etc) and 10% on education. Amidst increasing traffic congestion, South Africans allocate (9%) of their monthly budget to routine transport and 8% to communication services like mobile phone landline, internet, cable tv, etc and savings which illustrates the diverse priorities in their lives.

Adept adapters

Looking at how South Africans have adapted to their current financial constraints, 84% say they have changed their spending to save on household expenses, which is unchanged from the previous quarter. The top action they have taken to save on money is once again cutting down on takeaway meals (66%) followed by spending less on new clothes (65%) and switching to cheaper grocery brands (52%). The same number say they are using less on gas and electricity to cut costs, an understandable action in light of surging utility prices.

Delving deeper into their financial outlook and worries, 78% of South Africans think the country is currently in a recession, up 4 points from the previous quarter. When it comes to their top concerns, 33% of South Africans cite the economy as their top concern followed by job security at 28% and crime which comes back into the top three concerns at 26%. Interestingly, 16% South Africans are concerned about rising fuel prices and 15% cite both rising food prices and debt as their top concern a reflection of a South African consumer, whose is under enormous pressure.

A glimmer of hope

On a slightly more positive note, once South Africans have met their financial commitments, 82% say they have spare cash, up two points from the previous quarter which may show a small easing on their wallets. The highest number of consumers 48% (up from 47% in the previous quarter) put their disposable income into savings, followed by 32% paying off debts, credit cards and loans.

28% of respondents say they spend spare cash on new clothes, while 19% use it for home improvements. Interestingly, 18% said they spend their spare cash on out of home entertainment, which may well be due to the need to get away from the daily pressures that they face.

There has been a significant six point decrease to 27% of South Africans who view their job prospects as excellent or good, with those who say the state of their personal finances over the next 12 months will be excellent or good, also having decreased by four points to 62%.

Botha comments, "Despite this, there has been a small improvement in immediate spending intentions, with a one point increase to 32% South Africans who feel now is a good or excellent time to purchase what they need or want, which may indicate a flicker of improved optimism amongst South African consumers. It will be interesting to see if this translates into increased spend over the festive season shopping periods." SR

Innovation seen in store

By Hippo Zourides

As the year came to an end, we visited the new revamped Pick n Pay Constantia store in Cape Town and the site was replete with new innovation that will inspire the reader. A visit to the store is highly recommended.

The re-design of the store is based on many new ideas firstly launched in the PnP store at William Nicol, Sandton, Johannesburg and all concepts have been thought through very well to make it easier for the consumer to shop and enjoy the outing, with many promises of return visits.

The fresh departments have been completely redone, but the innovative ideas are not only limited to the serviced areas. Category managers had a field day coming up with novel ideas to merchandise and display their sections and many lessons can be taken from this store.

The delicatessen could be seen in any part of Europe. The presentation and variety are inspiring and the consumer is tempted with samples of the fare on display.

Olives and peppers to suit every taste are available on a loose-serve basis. The olive oils complement the display.

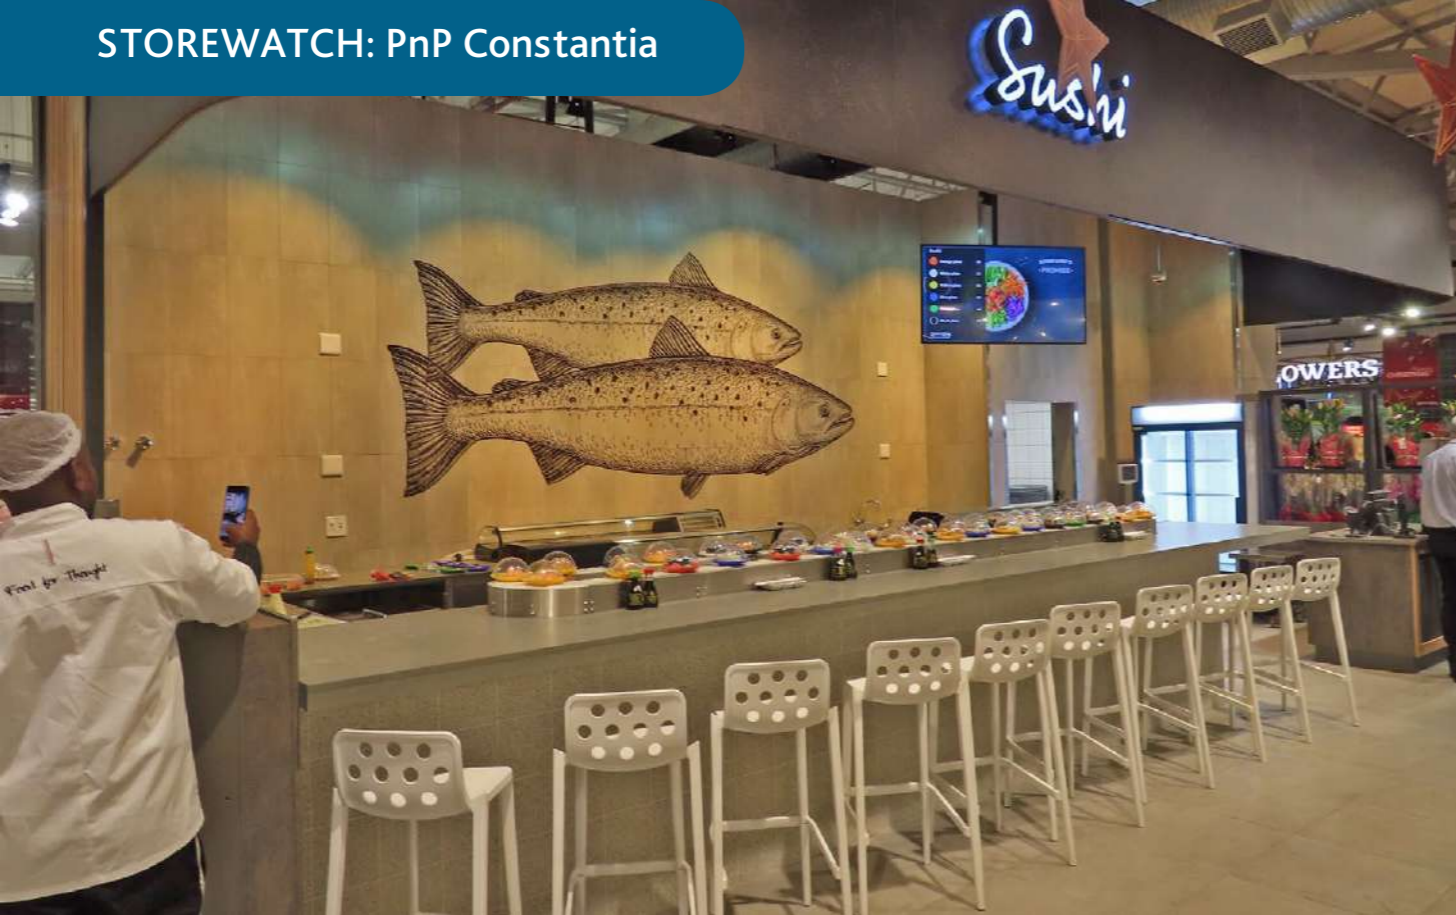

Cheese from SA and around the world make this mouth-watering display accessible to the fussiest taste buds.

For those in a hurry, the full delicatessen range is available on a pre-packed basis and the signage is clear to speed up the process.

Sushi and poke have become staples for South Africans who enjoy Japanese cuisine. The products are made in front of the customers by qualified Asians chefs.

The serviced area of the butchery not only displays a range of cuts for the consumer, plus the 'must have' biltong area, but now also included dry-aged and wet-aged meats, where the butchery staff can cut the steaks to the customers' specification.

The seafood department has become a staple in high end stores within Pick n Pay. This Constantia display is clean and attractive and no smells emanate from the department. Both fresh and frozen options are available to the consumer.

These specially-designed units are very versatile and can display a wide range of products. The units are on castors and can be wheeled anywhere in the store.

Breads of the world could be the name of this section. Freshly baked bread is openly displayed and the sneeze guard is placed to protect the bread while also serving as a shelf for signage and packaging. Related merchandise completes the display. The new charcoal panini has been added to the range.

The Constantia store is equipped with a demonstration kitchen area where healthy and simple to cook meals are prepared by chefs. Customers not only watch the proceedings and take away the recipes, but can also purchase all the items for the meal on the spot.

Krispy Kreme doughnuts have an exclusive arrangement with Pick n Pay to sell their range of products in some targeted stores.

Customers can access a whole range of products that can be purchased by the kilo or by the litre and packaged in their own packaging or environmentally-friendly paper packets.

This chocolatier stand will now be seen in upmarket PnP stores and the range is scrumptious.

The wine section is welcoming to the female shopper and the counter on the left is used for wine tastings and demonstrations.

The nude wall is becoming a beautiful display area for consumers who avoid plastic packaging. The range has increased from the original launch range and more products are added regularly.

The fresh produce displays are easily accessible to the shopper, who is spoilt for choice as far as tomatoes go.

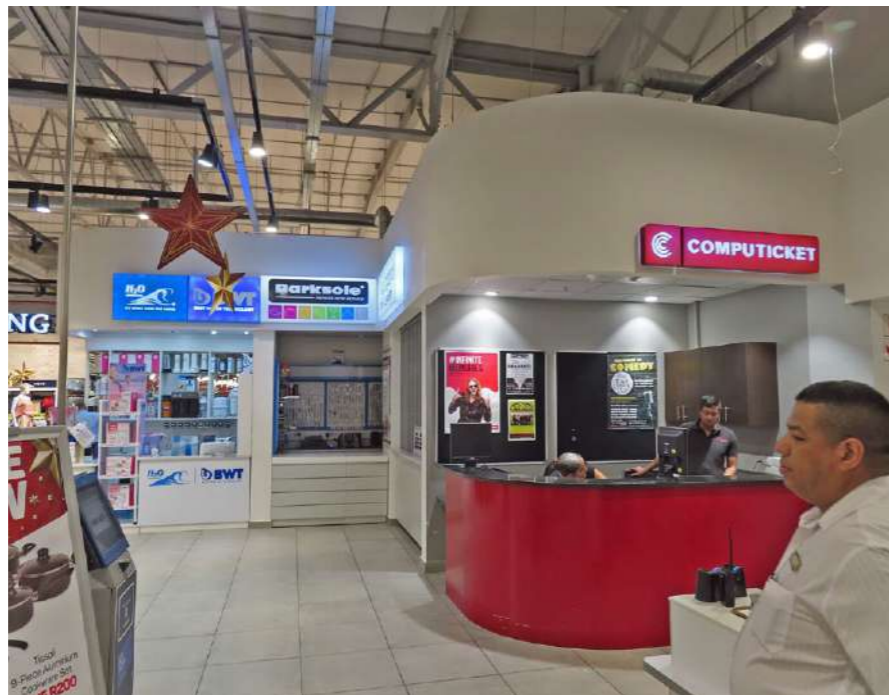

'Pick n mix' is now available in the fresh produce area. Customers can pick any four items on display in these bins for a total price of R100.

Pick n Pay has embraced the wellness trends amongst consumers and the Wellness Zone is a new development for its vitamin and supplement range of products, strategically located near its pharmacy and clinic offering.

This corner of the Constantia store includes a range of convenience services, from cinema, theatre and travel bookings to key cutting to shoe mending and clothes dry cleaning.

The pharmacy area is very professional with its clean and modern lines. SR The pharmacy is complemented by an outsourced clinic, manned by qualified staff for primary medical care.

Affordability

Purchasing plastic crates may be a costly exercise, therefore we also offer a rentals and services option. Our customers have the option of renting containers from us, which means that customers benefit from using containers and pallets without paying higher prices. Rented products can be fitted with RFID tags so that the risk of containers and pallets getting misplaced is reduced.

Our customers are our valued partners

Innovation is at the forefront of everything we do. Focusing on 'niche markets' is an exciting challenge for us. We always look for new products to bring to market which meet our customers' needs. Over the years we found that a solutions-based approach works best when we understand the challenges faced by customers.

Recycling

We also create new life for all our plastic products at the end of the product life cycle. Most of our partners are faced with the challenge of not knowing what to do with plastic products when they have reached their end of life. Our solution to this problem is allowing our customers to return old crates to us in exchange for new crates.

Old crates may be returned to Mpact Plastic Containers at the end of their 10–15 year life cycle. We have an on-site recycling facility where we recycle old products and use this recycled material to create new plastic products. This is how we are closing the loop and ensuring minimal natural resources are extracted from the Earth's surface.

Mpact Plastic Containers form part of Mpact Operations. There are two manufacturing plants; one in Brits, North West, and the other in Atlantis, Western Cape. Each plant is host to a 5500t Engel Duo machine, the largest of its kind in the southern hemisphere.
